MONDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 7, 1859.

REV. MR. SPURGEON-HIS SERMONS. A correspondent of the Fayetteville (N. C.) Presbyterian, writing from London under date of Dec. 20, gives an interesting account of the Rev. Mr. Spurgeon, who is now creating so much sensation in England. Having the States of Delaware, Kentucky, Missouri, and seen and heard Mr. S., the Presbyterian's

"Since my arrival in London I have had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Spurgeon preach twice, and have also had the privilege of a private interview with him. I first heard him in Music Hall, in Surry Garden, on which occasion the congregation related to the same of our firm, on and after January 1st, 1859, to that of WOOD, EDDY & CO., who will hereafter have the management of the Sparta Academy Lottery, and the others, as above named.

In all transactions we have endeavored to conduct our business with integrity and the other and the congregation of the congregation of the same of our firm, on and after January 1st, 1859, to that of WOOD, EDDY & CO., who will hereafter have the management of the Sparta Academy Lottery, and the others, as above named.

In all transactions we have endeavored to conduct our business with integrity and the other and the conduction of the same of our firm, on and after January 1st, 1859, to that of WOOD, EDDY & CO., who will hereafter have the management of the Sparta Academy Lottery, and the others, as above named. which occasion the congregation probably numbered 9,000. And although the services | heretofore bestowed on us is well deserving of belasted about an hour and a half, I saw not one single individual leave the house until they closed, though there were probably 2.000 or more standing during the whole time. Every eye seemed to be fixed upon the speaker, and the vast congregation seemed to realize that they had come together for a holy purpose.

The sermon was not what would generally be called eloquent. It was not very logical, nor did it abound in figurative language; and there was nothing like vehemence in its delivery. But I have rarely heard a more impressive discourse. It contained the very marrow of the Gospel, conveyed in language that a child could perfectly comprehend, and what seemed to me of the most importance, the speaker seemed determined that his hearers should understand that he was addressing them individually. There is a pointed | 1 manner, and a quiet sort of earnestness in his delivery, combined with some originality of expression, which arrests and holds the attention of every hearer. In his prayers one cannot but feel that he is addressing a present God. His tone is subdued and conversational, as if addressing the Holy One face to face, yet full of lowly reverence and deep humility.

In the first sermon I heard from him there was nothing to create a smile, but in the second, which was preached to his own people, a large portion of whom are of the lower there were some expressions which would be distasteful to a more cultivated audience. For instance, in speaking of christians becoming vain, he remarked that a number of his people had manifested a good deal of solicitude on his account and had assured him that they prayed that the great attention he received would not make him vain, though they were at the same time so stiff that they could not bend their knees without taking out their backbones.

I could not but feel thankful, after hearing him, that God had raised up such a man. For three years he has continued to collect a larger congregation, than perhaps could be drawn together by any other individual in the world; and yet it is generally conceded that he is not a man of very extraordinary ability. Hundreds of preachers of the Gospel have probably equal powers, and yet no one can draw such a congregation from every class of society. Is there not much reason to fear that too much attention is given to the preparation of pulpit essays, that too great an effort is made to preach fine sermons, ela-borate discourses, and that there is much too little of simple, clear and straight-forward Gospel preaching?

I felt after hearing Mr. Spurgeon, as perhaps many others have felt. What is to hinder hundreds of clergymen from preaching as great sermons as he? Let them lay aside their manuscripts, use, as he does, the simplest Anglo-Saxon words, and deliver them in the same earnest and pointed manner, and I doubt not they will produce something of the same impression.

A PRIVATE INTERVIEW .- I was very much pleased with what I saw of Mr. S., in private. I was particularly impressed by his simple hearted, earnest piety, and much gratified to find him disposed to acknowledge that there was much zeal among other bodies of christians than his own, especially in the Established Church, of which I had been inclined to think he had a very low opinion. He told me that most of his sermons were prepared in fifteen minutes, and that he rarely ever spends as much as an hour on one discourse. He says he makes great use of the old divines, and can sometimes make a half dozen sermons out of as many of their pages.

He has a very agreeable manner in the social circle, and a bright boyish face, and seems to be blessed with a splendid physical constitution. Ordinarily he feels strong enough to preach thirteen sermons a week, one of which is always published, being taken down at the time it is preached by a stenographer. He seems anxious to make a visit to America, but is unwilling to leave London until his large new church is erected. Some evenings since he had a tea-drinking in his chapel, on which occasion about $4,000 were contributted for the new building."

If the applicate prefer, he can pay the full amount of the premium in eash, or by effecting a cash insurance for two years, the insured saves one eighth of the amount he would otherwise have to pay; or by becoming a member, and giving a small premium note, the in-sured saves nearly one-half of the amount charge by Stock Companies, when insuring from year t year. This is the advantage resulting from the combination of THE CASH AND MUTUAL PRINCIPLE.

This Company commenced issuing Policie against loss or damage by fire, on the 18th a March, 1854, since which time over five thousand seven hundred persons have insured and become trebled our business during the past year, we feel grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed upon the Company thus far, and for its flattering pro-pects of future usefulness.
